REFLECTION:

Burns range from being a minor common wound, dealt with in the community, to the most severe and devastating of injuries. Burns are highly variable and individual injuries affecting all ages and social groups. In general terms, relevant assessment and management of the burnt patient is based on the size, depth and anatomical site of the injury, mechanism of injury and the presence of co-existing conditions. This session is based on best practice burns management for non complex wounds that have not be referred to a specialised Burns Unit. The Best Practice International Guidelines from Wounds International is the reference source for this session.
