Australian Nursing & Midwifery Federation
Continuing Professional Education

This is to certify that

Caleb Fellowes

completed an online educational tutorial and assessment with the Australian Nursing and Midwifery Federation

on 16th December, 2020

Arterial Blood Gases

An arterial blood gas, otherwise known as an ABG is a diagnostic procedure that is used to assess metabolic and respiratory homeostasis.
The use of arterial blood gases in the assessment and management of patients
The theory behind arterial blood gases
Acid-base balance, buffer systems, ABG components and normal values Acid-base disorders and ABG analysis and interpretation of results
How to perform an arterial puncture including indications and contraindications

3 CPE Hours

Federal Education Officer

www.anmf.org.au/cpe